

Let's see whether this estimate is reasonable. According to the plane's technical documentation, the 747-400's four engines together can provide roughly 1 meganewton of thrust.